

Results of FeBelGen's Quality Survey

Generic Medicines Evening

November 23rd 2009

Virginie Peirs

VISION ON HEALTHCARE FOR ALL

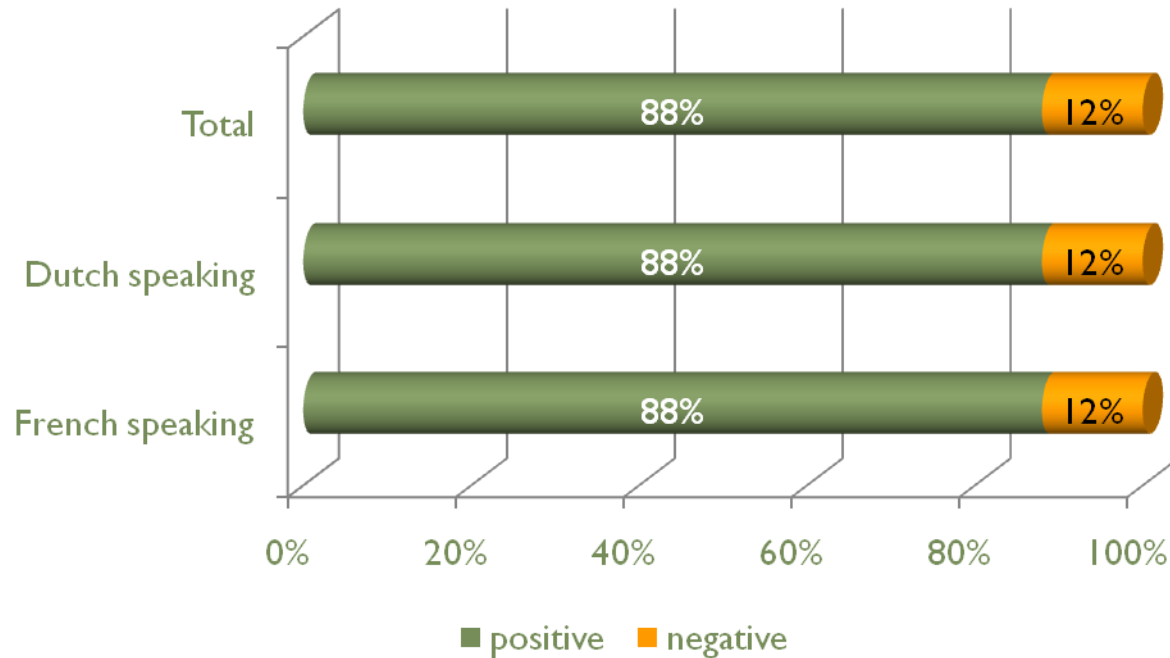

Methodology

120 GENERAL PRACTITIONERS
Average number of years in practice		23
Gender	Male	72%
	Female	28%
Type of practice	Independent	77%
	Group practice	23%
Regional distribution	Flanders & Dutch speaking Brussels	50%
	Wallonia & French speaking Brussels	50%

- Medistrat
- September 2009

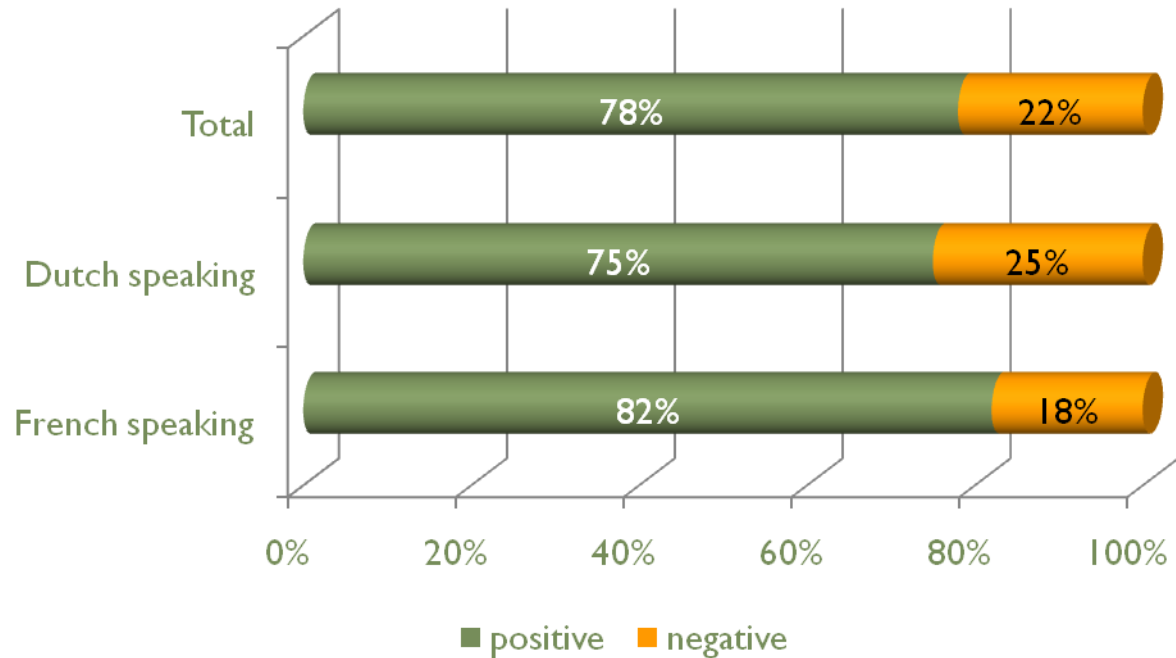

General perception generic medicines

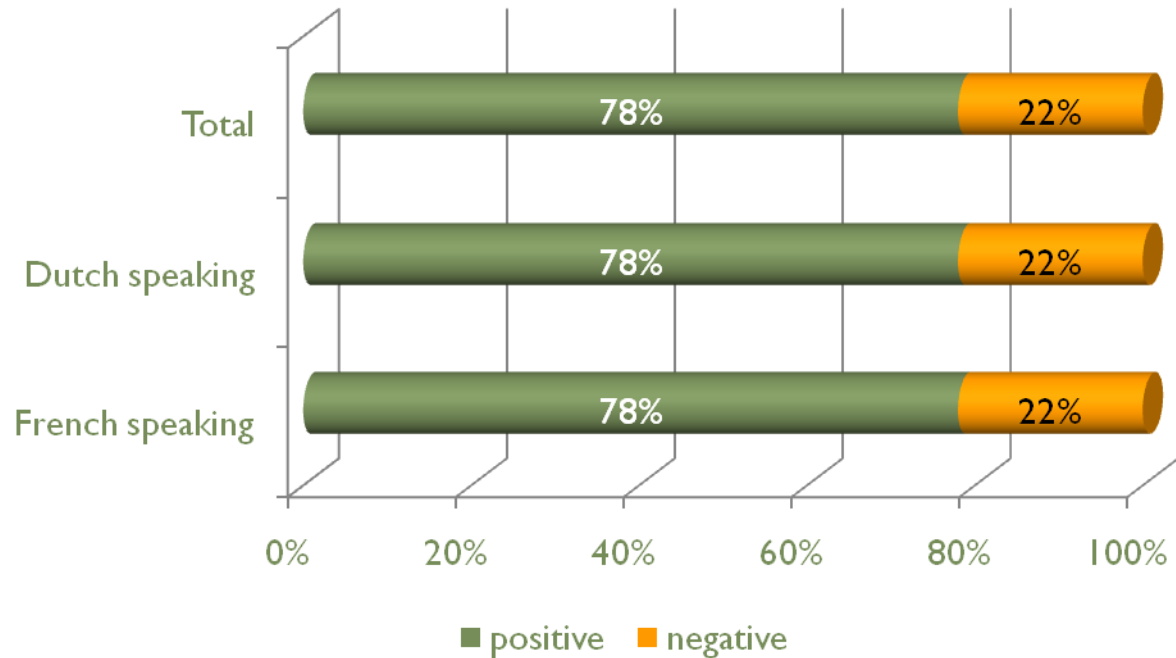

Global Image generic companies

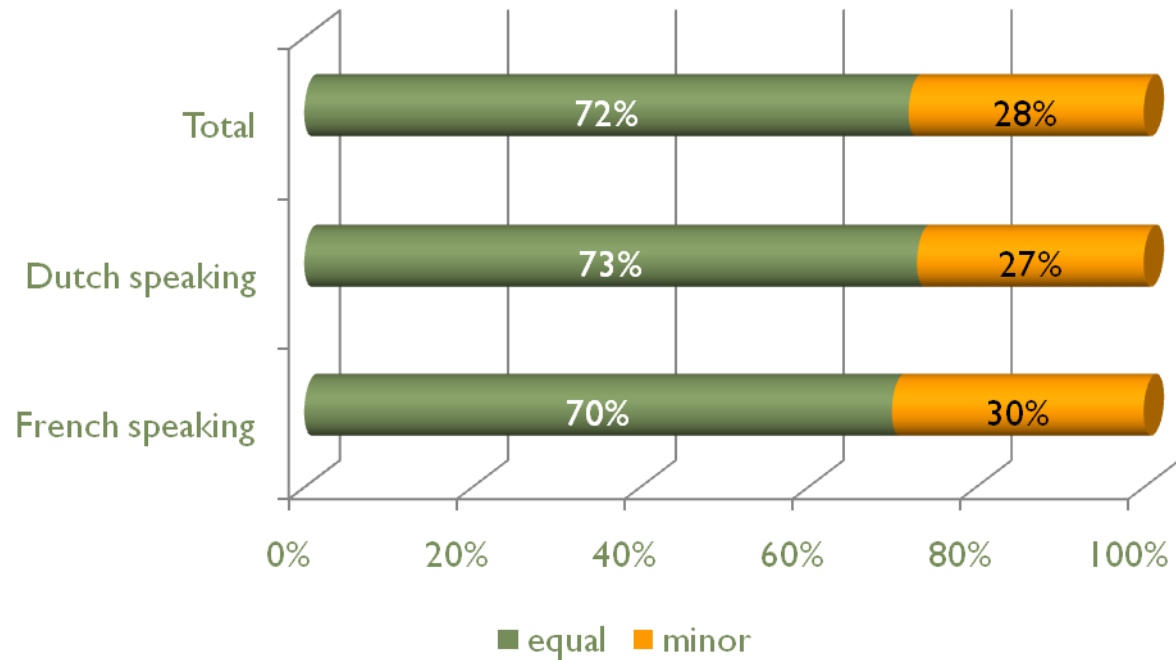

Need for generic medicines

Perception on the quality of generic medicines

Narrow Therapeutic Index (NTI)

% of GPs who...	Total	Dutch speaking	French speaking
... make reservation in relation to the efficacy and safety of generic medicines with a Narrow Therapeutic Index	59%	57%	62%

Allergic reactions/Adverse events

% of GPs who agree to the statement that...	Total	Dutch speaking	French speaking the use of other excipients for the manufacturing of generic medicines causes more allergic reactions	32%	27%	37%
generic medicines cause more adverse events	20%	18%	22%

Patients

% of GPs who ...	Total	Dutch speaking	French speaking
... have come across patients who explicitly ask the GP to prescribe generic medicines	97%	98%	95%
... have been confronted with patients who are reluctant when the GP wants to prescribe them a generic medicine	86%	88%	83%
... would find it useful if the name of the active substance would be mentioned in large characters on the outer package of brand named medicinal products	83%	73%	93%

Conclusion

1. General Perception
2. Narrow Therapeutic Index
Adverse Events
3. Compliance